AIR FORCE MAINTAINS INCESSANT POUNDING OF NAZI OIL PLANTS

Rain of British Bombs Turns Synthetic Factory Into Giant Blow Torch in Inferno of Sweeping Flame—Channel Ports Again Subjected To Heavy Punishment

LONDON, Oct. 15 (P).—A two-hour rain of bombs which turned big German synthetic oil plant at Ploetz, near Stettin, into a giant blow torch was described today by British aviators returning from a series of night attacks on Germany.

Oil storage plants at Magdeburg, Bohlen and Hanover also were pounded according to Britain's "master plan" for systematic destruction of Germany's chief oil centres, the Air Ministry said. Berlin was subjected to an hour and a half bombing.

Tonight, again by moonlight, the bombers struck at the familiar channel ports with such force that reverberations were felt along the English coast.

The Boulogne area was bombed heavily. Flashes or bursting shell and anti-aircraft fire were seen through the mist.

INFERNO PRODUCED
The raid on Ploetz produced an inferno, returning flyers said, with giant chimney stacks toppling, flames sweeping a mile square, smoke streaking for six miles over the horizon, and blazing oil tanks settling a glare which flyers said must have been seen in Berlin, eighty-five miles to the southwest.

The fire was so fierce, one pilot said, that he felt its heat like a blowtorch when he swooped down to 4,000 feet to take deliberate aim at still untouched tanks.

Guided by bright moonlight, the British squadrons flew 500 miles right to the Baltic before letting fly their bombs on the synthetic plant which has a capacity of 1,000,000 metric tons of synthetic motor fuel annually.

Direct hits were obtained in the first five minutes of attack at about 10 p.m. on large buildings near the boiler house, the Air Ministry said. Fires broke out, "some of them so large it seemed the oil containers must have been cracked and set alight."

As the raid progressed there was a mounting tally of vivid, violent explosions, buildings were demolished.

BUILDS PLANES AT SPEED RATE

Boeing Company Turns Out Trainer Craft Every Three Hours

SEATTLE, Oct. 15 (P).—In expansion under the national defence programme, the Boeing Airplane Company announced tonight plans to double the floor area of its plants here and at Wichita, Kan.

The expansion to a total of seventy-four acres of floor space will bring the plants to five times their size of a year ago.

"The expansion will make possible the employment of several thousand additional aircraft workers," the company statement said, "and will radically increase the production rate of four-engine, Boeing flying fortresses and Stearman primary training planes for the national defence programme."

"At the present time a production rate of one flying fortress every two days and one trainer every three hours has been reached."

The company said the expansion would enable the Stearman plant at Wichita to turn out training planes at the rate of one every ninety minutes.

WICHITA PLANT
The new expansion programme also gives increased importance to Wichita as a factor in Boeing production, the company said. "In line with the Government's desire to build up inland manufacturing facilities, the programme includes the construction of a new 3,000,000-foot plant at Wichita to share in the flying fortress production."

The new Wichita plant, it was explained, would be devoted "to certain phases of the flying fortress manufacturing process, including outboard wing sections and tail surfaces" for use in the main Seattle plant.

Additions already have been started, also, to the present Stearman plant at Wichita. Of the 1,500,000 square feet to be added, about two-thirds will be in the big Seattle plant No. 2 and one-third at Wichita. The entire expansion is due for completion in 140 days.

LONDON, Oct. 15 (P).—Lord Lloyd, Colonial Secretary, tonight refuted claims of Hitler and Mussolini that the war would expose the "rottenness of empire," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported tonight.

"The answer to this has already come," he said, "through renewed assurances of unflinching support and devotion from the greatest Crown Colony to the smallest coral reef in the Pacific Ocean," Lord Lloyd said.

Former Great Lake Freighter Was Serving Britain in Second War

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 (P).—The 1,813-ton Trevisa, reported by MacKay Radio to have been torpedoed off the Irish coast, was serving in her second war as a coastal freighter in British waters. She was one of a group of Great Lake freighters that crossed the ocean to be taken over by the British Ministry of Shipping earlier in the year.

Officials of Canadian Lake Carriers, Ltd., owners of the vessel, said tonight that they had no word of the reported torpedoing. They lost track of the Trevisa as soon as she had crossed the ocean and came under control of the Ministry of Shipping. She was manned by an English crew.

Capt. L. Beaupre, of Montreal, recalled tonight that the Trevisa had two submarines chalked up to her credit during the last war. Then, too, she served in the Channel trade, and on two occasions her crew ran out the better of attacking submarines. The supports for the gun remained in the ship after the war.

RUSSIA MAY BACK TURK TO STEM AXIS BALKANS DRIVE

From Europe Day by Day—
THE TIMES, London

News and Comment on International Events selected from The Times daily and published in The Daily Colonist by special arrangement with The Vancouver Daily Province.

(Copyright, 1940, by Southam Co.)

LONDON, Oct. 15 (By Cable).—The German invasion of Rumania, the cause of reorganizing the Rumanian army, says The Times military correspondent, may constitute a serious threat to British forces in the Middle East.

The design, attributed to Hitler in some quarters, of a march through Turkey to Palestine, is highly improbable, but possession by Italy of Greece's naval and submarine bases for operations against the British fleet or to put pressure on Turkey would be valuable to the enemy.

If Greece handed over, without resistance, bases in the Aegean Sea to Italy, Turkey's situation would become perilous, especially if Bulgaria, at the same time, followed Rumania's example in admitting German troops to her territory.

The peril to Turkey represents a threat to the Suez Canal, because it is Turkey's independence of the Axis, combined with the Royal Air Force in Palestine, that has so far saved Syria from complete Italian domination.

If such domination was imposed on Syria, it might even take the form of using French aircraft against Egypt.

If, however, Greece called for help, then Britain could use the Aegean bases from which to bomb Rumanian oil fields and oil tanks on the Black Sea.

Yugoslavia has warned the aggressor nations that she is ready to fight to maintain her independence. The British Ministry will remain for the present in Bucharest, but most of his staff has already left.

Moscow newspapers have again affirmed Russian neutrality. The Nazis are boasting that new German-Soviet talks are to take place so as to check any improvement in Anglo-Soviet relations, and in Tokyo the new Japanese Ambassador to Moscow announces he hopes to see cessation of Soviet help to China.

However, Stalin preserves complete silence and there are no signs that he thinks Russian strategic situation much changed by the new three-power German-Italian-Japanese pact.

The Japanese bait for Russia would be the offer of the Soviet area of influence in China. Japan apparently wants to free herself for expansion southward into the Pacific.

Denmark is now showing open hostility to the Nazi invaders and new faith in Britain's capacity for victory. So severe has been the Royal Air Force bombing of German ports that all Dutch fire brigades have been sent to Germany and 4,000 Dutchmen recruited to work on repairs to the port of Hamburg.

The German news agency, giving news of the recent bombing of The Times office, says for some time past The Times and other London newspapers have been compelled to publish in provincial towns. This statement is just another Nazi illusion.

As further proof of Nazi terror tactics, the Rome radio has just announced that concentrated bombing attacks will now be directed against London newspaper offices. This statement is just another Nazi illusion.

Observers Believe Russo-German Relations Are Strained by Hitler's Move Into Rumania—Moscow Remains Silent on Future Policy—Greece Calls Up Military Specialists

Nazi Circles Say Stalin Policy Non-Interference

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 15 (P).—Reports of two German troop movements in the Balkans raised new fears tonight of an extension of the war, and there was talk that Soviet Russia is negotiating a military assistance pact with Turkey, Britain's non-belligerent ally.

Men in Sofia, Bulgaria, who are friendly to the Soviet, declared they had been informed that Moscow is prepared to promise the Turks armed support if Germany and Italy should try to seize the Dardanelles. They added on the authority of "high Communists" that Russian-Turkish negotiations have "every chance of success."

The Russian news agency, Tass, disclosed that Russia had not received satisfactory advance notice of Germany's military penetration of Rumania, and thus it seemed to many observers that German-Soviet relations had suffered.

Concern in Greece, another power friendly to Britain, was evidenced by the action of the War Ministry in calling up certain specialists of the military class of 1936.

The Germans were reported to have dispatched several battalions of troops to Albania to augment Italian forces there, occasioning speculation that an Axis move against Northern Greece is in prospect.

Another report, not officially confirmed, was that 300 German army tanks and several squadrons of Nazi fighters and bombing planes had arrived at Gela, the Rumanian Danube harbor opposite the Russian frontier.

REMOVES NATIONALS
It was understood that the Turkish Government had charged three steamships to speed up the removal of its nationals from Rumania.

Well-informed Fascists in Rome described reports of German troop arrivals in Albania as "false." The belief prevailed in foreign circles there, however, that a new Axis offensive would be launched within a fortnight. Whether German and Italian troops would move against

FORMED CHAIN IN THE WATER

Occupants of Shelter Groped Way to Safety in The Darkness

LONDON, Oct. 15 (P).—Occupants of a sub-surface shelter in a London suburban area which suffered a direct hit by a bomb and was flooded, calmly formed a human chain and groped their way through knee-deep water to safety, it was disclosed today.

Bare details of the incident were related in an official statement by the Air Ministry.

A bomb fractured the roof of the shelter Monday night, broke water mains and cut off the light.

"In the hours of darkness it was feared many people had lost their lives, but it is now known that, in spite of difficult conditions, the occupants of the shelter left in an orderly manner and total casualties were not many," the statement said.

One of those rescued said: "We made a long human chain to the exit by holding each other. We got out safely, though some children hurt their heads in the darkness and received first aid."

The bomb had pierced a roadway before it fractured the shelter. An empty bus was blown into the bomb crater by the blast and a score of stores were wrecked.

CABLE CUT WHEN RAID IN PROGRESS

Companies Report Service Interrupted To and From London When Bombs Fall

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (P).—Western Union cable service from London was cut tonight during a severe German bombing raid.

Its cable between London and New York ceased operating, as did also The Associated Press leased cable which feeds through the London Western Union building. The Canadian Press' dispatches came over the A.P.'s cable.

The London bureau of The Associated Press, maintaining contact with New York through alternate cable facilities, gave no replies to inquiries about the cable interruptions, reporting only that it would resume sending on the leased cable when facilities again became adequate.

The Western Union here reported it only knew that its service to and from London had been interrupted.

Giardin to Receive Sentence in Assize Court This Morning

Vancouver Man Makes Plea for Speedy Decision On Account of Illness—Defence Is Mistaken Identity in Two Charges

SENTENCE will be imposed by Mr. Justice Sidney A. Smith on Leno Giardin, Vancouver, at 11 o'clock this morning during the Fall Assizes at the Courthouse. Giardin, who failed to secure counsel, was convicted on two burglary charges. J.B. Clearhough, K.C., presented the Crown's case.

Today Joe Kam, represented by J.B. Clearhough, will stand trial on a charge of possessing opium on August 24.

It took an assize jury less than half an hour to find Giardin guilty of entering the dwelling of Mrs. Jean McKenzie by night with intent to commit theft therein on September 14, and a second count of stealing $16 from Mrs. McKenzie.

Members of the jury were Walter B. Revercomb (foreman), Alexander M. Urquhart, Charles Cameron, Alfred W. G. Osborne, William Smyth, Robert Peden, George Kenner, Harry J. Fancett, James A. McCall, Richard C. Field, Edward W. Floyer and Lawrence H. McLaren.

IDENTIFIES THIEF
Mrs. McKenzie told of seeing Giardin jump through the kitchen window of her dwelling about 6 o'clock on the morning of September 14 and disappear with her purse containing $16. She described identifying the accused during a line-up at the police station on September 21.

MEMBERS OF JURY
Members of the jury were William J. Noble (foreman), Victor D. Peddie, Arthur S. Harper, E. Frank Burton, George A. Carter, James A. McCall, Henry J. Fancett, Peter Cunningham, Lawrence H. McLaren, Edward W. Floyer, Gabriel R. Guillemand and John S. Hickey.

Mrs. Gauthier told of seeing Giardin lifting an antique clock on her bureau as she lay in bed at 6:40 o'clock on the morning of September 13. She shouted at him and he jumped out of a window. She had identified him at the police station on September 23.

DETECTIVE HEARD
Detective Woodburn described identification of the accused by Mrs. Gauthier, and his arrest.

"I had nothing to do with the crime. I was in a place where I could not make telephone calls or get in touch with anyone," was all that Giardin had to say.

Jury members found the accused guilty in twenty-three minutes.

Giardin informed his Lordship that he had trouble with his lungs. He asserted he could not get proper care here, and requested that he be sentenced without delay. Sentence will be imposed this morning.

PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE EXPOUNDED

Poet Alfred Noyes, in Prose And Verse, Stresses the Eternal Values

Before a crowded audience in the Empress Hotel last night, Alfred Noyes, one of England's greatest poets, expounded in poetry and prose the philosophy behind his work: the faith that the progress of mankind depends on the values of the human spirit, which in turn are based on religion.

Speaking here under the auspices of the National Council of Education, the poet chose "The Torch Bearers," the title of his own saga of science, as the general head for his lecture, remarking that this phrase is used and known as a symbol for carrying on the fire of life from one generation to another.

Introduced by Albert Sullivan, president of the local branch, Dr. Noyes held his audience spellbound as he quoted from his own works, the lines being given new meaning as they were uttered by the man who created them, and interspersed his readings with apt and illustrative comment designed to bring out the motif he discussed.

TOUCH OF THE ETERNAL
He began with "Old Grey Squire" as an example of the orderly rhythm and metre that had characterized poetry for 2,000 years until recently, when the "pseudo-intellectual and pseudo-moderns" as he scornfully termed them, introduced "so-called" modern verse, empty of harmony and of the touch of the eternal that had marked all real poetry.

Applause greeted his reading of "The Admiral's Ghost," based on the legend that Nelson was really the incarnation of an antique clock on her bureau as she lay in bed at 6:40 o'clock on the morning of September 13. She shouted at him and he jumped out of a window. She had identified him at the police station on September 23.

PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE EXPOUNDED

Poet Alfred Noyes, in Prose And Verse, Stresses the Eternal Values

Before a crowded audience in the Empress Hotel last night, Alfred Noyes, one of England's greatest poets, expounded in poetry and prose the philosophy behind his work: the faith that the progress of mankind depends on the values of the human spirit, which in turn are based on religion.

Speaking here under the auspices of the National Council of Education, the poet chose "The Torch Bearers," the title of his own saga of science, as the general head for his lecture, remarking that this phrase is used and known as a symbol for carrying on the fire of life from one generation to another.

Introduced by Albert Sullivan, president of the local branch, Dr. Noyes held his audience spellbound as he quoted from his own works, the lines being given new meaning as they were uttered by the man who created them, and interspersed his readings with apt and illustrative comment designed to bring out the motif he discussed.

TOUCH OF THE ETERNAL
He began with "Old Grey Squire" as an example of the orderly rhythm and metre that had characterized poetry for 2,000 years until recently, when the "pseudo-intellectual and pseudo-moderns" as he scornfully termed them, introduced "so-called" modern verse, empty of harmony and of the touch of the eternal that had marked all real poetry.

Applause greeted his reading of "The Admiral's Ghost," based on the legend that Nelson was really the incarnation of an antique clock on her bureau as she lay in bed at 6:40 o'clock on the morning of September 13. She shouted at him and he jumped out of a window. She had identified him at the police station on September 23.

Detective Woodburn described identification of the accused by Mrs. Gauthier, and his arrest.

"I had nothing to do with the crime. I was in a place where I could not make telephone calls or get in touch with anyone," was all that Giardin had to say.

Jury members found the accused guilty in twenty-three minutes.

Giardin informed his Lordship that he had trouble with his lungs. He asserted he could not get proper care here, and requested that he be sentenced without delay. Sentence will be imposed this morning.

Move for Reversion To Angle Parking Is Unlikely to Succeed

Minority of City Council Able to Defeat By-Law to Effect Change on Douglas Street—Re-tailers' Protests Unavailing

THERE will be no return to angle parking on Douglas Street if a prediction made by Mayor Andrew McGavin at a meeting of the City Council is borne out by the voting on a by-law soon to be brought before the council.

Seven members of the council yesterday voted for a resolution to revert to angle parking, and four opposed it. Mayor McGavin said a by-law would be drafted in accordance with the resolution, but forecast its defeat if the voting were the same as on yesterday's resolution since passage of the by-law would require a three-fifths majority.

"STAYING WITH IT"

"I am of the opinion that parallel parking has brought an improvement in traffic conditions, and I am going to stay with it," the mayor declared, after voting against a motion by Alderman J. A. McCall, seconded by Alderman W. L. Morgan, that angle parking should be restored.

The council's vote on the motion was recorded as follows:

For restoration of angle parking: Aldermen Worthington, Morgan, D. D. McTavish, W. H. Davies, B. J. Gadsden, S. H. O'Neil and H. A. Will.

Against: Mayor McGavin and Aldermen R. A. C. Dewar, Edward Williams and T. W. Hawkins.

Discussion of the question followed consideration of a report by the works committee that it was unable to recommend any change in the present system of parallel parking on Douglas Street, and protesting that parallel parking was unsatisfactory and seriously detrimental to business.

INTENDED AS TRIAL

Supporting Alderman Worthington's motion, Alderman O'Neil said the council had been asked by the chief of police to "give parallel parking a trial." He agreed that there were some points in favor of this method of parking, but pointed out that there was a preponderance of evidence against it, and in favor of a return to angle parking.

Alderman Morgan reminded the council that when the question had first been discussed, a majority of the council was not in favor of parallel parking, but had given way to the minority, since they were assured that it was merely a trial measure. Now, the majority felt that parallel parking should be discontinued, and he considered it unfair that a minority of the council should be able to defeat a by-law to restore angle parking.

ZONING BY-LAW

Prior to the meeting of the council, a public hearing was held on the zoning amendment by-law requiring the consent in writing of 65 per cent of property owners on streets affected before permission would be given for the conversion of single-family dwellings into apartment buildings in selected residential districts. There was no objection to the by-law, which subsequently was finally passed.

In reply to the council's representations that Seymour Narrows should be bridged at Ripple Rock a letter was received from Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, pointing out strategic reasons why such a plan would not be feasible.

The council referred to the police commission and public works committee a request from Major G. G. Aitken, commanding the district depot, Bay Street Armoury, that there should be more rigid control of traffic past the Armoury and of parking in the vicinity.

An invitation, conveyed by Captain McTavish, adjutant of the Gordon Head militia training camp, for the council to attend a church parade there next Sunday, make a tour of the camp afterwards, and remain for lunch, was accepted.

The council also considered a petition from the Citizens' Association for a tax exemption for the Anglican Synod for exemption from taxation of the Bishop's Chapel and adjoining land, as property used solely for religious purposes, was referred to Alderman O'Neil and the city solicitor for a report.

Sylvester U. Drive, Ltd., was granted permission to use property on the south side of Broughton Street, east of Douglas Street, as a public parking lot.

A request by a member of the non-permanent city staff to have his militia training camp pay of $18 made up to the amount he would have received if his work for the city had not been interrupted was referred to the finance committee for a report.

A petition by J. Dunlop and others regarding alleged nuisances in the neighborhood of their property, 743 Market Street, was referred to the police.

On the recommendation of the lands and zoning committee, the council approved sales of city-owned properties, as follows: North side of Leonard Street, between Cook and Cambridge Streets, $400; north side of Michigan Street, between Oswego and Montreal Streets, $50; south side of North Dairy Road, between Cedar Hill Road and Doncaster Street, $100; east side of Shakespeare Street, between Kings Road and Hastings Street, $50; south side of Minto Street, $25; east side of Morrison Street, between Fort Street and Oak Bay Avenue, $900; northwest corner of Discovery and Douglas Streets, $1,200; north side of Basil Avenue, between Blackwood and Jones Streets, $200; northeast corner of Chester Avenue and McKenna Street, $175. The council accepted the tender of J. A. Arendell, who offered to pay $45, for the demolition and removal of an old building in the 1100 block, Balmoral Road.

A special committee, headed by Mayor McGavin, appointed earlier to consider a complaint by Thomas Nute regarding the requirement of the Anglican Church that an Anglican clergyman should be in attendance at all burial services in the Anglican section of Ross Bay Cemetery, reported that this authority was given to the church by the Cemetery Ordinance Amendment Act of 1939. The council, therefore, canceled its instructions to the committee to interview the Bishop of Columbia.

On the motion of Alderman Willis, seconded by Alderman Dewar, the council placed on record its "deep appreciation and gratitude to the forethought, courage and determination" shown by the late David Leeming, former mayor and ex-Alderman P. R. Brown, in "taking the initiative in the campaign to save Victoria from bankruptcy," and directed that copies of the resolution should be forwarded to Mrs. Leeming and Mr. Brown.

In moving the resolution, Alderman Willis pointed out that up to the present there was no record on the city's books of appreciation of the introduction by Messrs. Leeming and Brown of a refunding scheme in 1936 to solve the difficult financial situation in which the city was then placed. He declared that all previous resolutions then made by the sponsors of the plan had since been amply borne out.

Gas Pains Kept Him in Distress—Sleepless Nights—Bowel Constipation—But Now Mosby's Tonic Has Relieved Him and He Says: "I Want to Endorse This Splendid Medicine to Others."

"I never would have believed there was such a medicine!" People over this entire section are saying that about Mosby's Tonic. This New Scientific Mixture of Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Medical Agents is now being introduced to the public daily in this city at the Cunningham Drug Store.

Just a few days ago Mr. M. Helmer, of 110 Water St., Vancouver, B.C., made the following sincere statement about Mosby's Tonic:

Gas Pains Kept Him Awake Nights

"I had certainly become a real sufferer from gas and bloating distress," said Mr. Helmer. "After my meals I always got so full of gas that I felt a choked-up feeling all the way from the pit of my stomach to my throat. And oh! what pains from this gas! They felt like a knife stabbing me. My food would turn sour in my stomach, and all of this suffering kept me awake at night. I got in a place where I was afraid to eat. My bowels were badly constipated."

"I tried so many things without relief that I thought I was never going to find a medicine that would help me, and then finally I heard about Mosby's Tonic and started taking it. It was what I needed. It cleared that gas and bloating from my stomach and now I enjoy my meals without suffering afterward. I can go to bed and get a good night's rest, and feel fine in the morning. It also regularizes my bowels. So I gladly give you my statement and endorse this medicine for I think others who suffer like I did should hear of it."

ROBERT ROSS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Resident of This City for Past Thirty-Six Years Passed Away Yesterday

The death occurred at the Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday of Robert Ross, in his ninety-third year. He has been a resident of Victoria for the past thirty-six years and prior to entering the hospital made his home on Pandora Avenue.

Mr. Ross was born in Westville, Nova Scotia, and was for many years engaged in mining and prospecting. He was not married.

He is survived by a niece, Mrs. Thompson, Kirby, Victoria, and nieces and nephews in other parts of Canada and in the United States.

The remains are resting at McCall Brothers' Funeral Home, where services will be conducted by Rev. John Turner, of the Centennial United Church, tomorrow, at 2 p.m. Interment will follow in Colwood Burial Park.

Receives News of Brother's Death

Mrs. Jack O'Reilly, Pleasant Street, has received the news from the Old Country of the sudden death from heart failure of her eldest brother, Captain Charles Windham, M.C., Norfolk Regiment, of Dartry Castle, County Monaghan, Ireland, and Burchinger Lodge, Herts, England.

Captain Windham, who was forty-eight, saw much service in the last war in Egypt, Salonika and France. He won the Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry on two occasions and was wounded at Delville Wood. He was the head of the Windham family of Febriz Hall, a lovely old place in Norfolk.

"This death is a great shock to all who knew him. He married Edith, the elder daughter of the Earl and Countess of Dartry. There is an only son, Sub-Lieut. Charles Windham, Royal Navy, who visited Eglar, Ontario, last week. He was the head of the Windham family of Febriz Hall, a lovely old place in Norfolk."

Anticipating a call for nurses, many schools had accepted more probationers. The Canadian Society of Toronto, which now trained most of the physiotherapists, had more than doubled its incoming class this year. The training of laboratory technologists should receive new stimulation. The Canadian Society of Laboratory Technologists was now to be recognized as equivalent to a registry by the Canadian Medical Association, which had recently formulated standards whereby schools in laboratories for the training of technicians might be approved.

Hospitals, said Dr. Agnew, had been fortunate in retaining exemption from sales tax this year. Loss of this exemption would be a terrific blow to "our struggling institutions," and it was to be hoped that the exemption would be maintained.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Dr. Agnew characterized as "another crisis" the passing by Parliament "with record speed" of the Unemployment Insurance measure. Fortunately the Canadian Hospital Council was on the job. While unemployment insurance was desirable, it was the view of thirteen out of fourteen hospital associations in Canada that hospitals should not participate. Dr. Agnew added:

Costs had gone up, but not to the extent they might have gone had the Government not set up a War-time Prices Board to control inflation. The average price index of consumers' goods had risen about 11 per cent; the cost of living 46 per cent. These, however, were not an index of the hospital situation, as many of the supplies used had gone up tremendously, as much as 100 per cent; others, such as those formerly imported from Germany, were not available at all.

Toronto Physician Reviews Position Of Hospital Today

Dr. Harvey Agnew, of Canadian Hospital Council, Addresses Convention Here on Effects of War—On Costs, Personnel and Contributions

"OUR military efforts must come first; on that all of us are agreed. But it behooves every one of us to see that the public never loses sight of the fact that our civilian needs go on just as acutely in wartime as in peace. Our civilian population must be cared for despite changing personnel and higher costs. Our hospitals need more personal and financial assistance during a time of war than they do in peace."

"We can only obtain such now and can only ensure the return of this temporarily diverted public support after the war if each and every one of us utilize every possible opportunity to emphasize that it is vitally important for the future of our country that these regular charities and philanthropies be supported to the fullest extent that the many commitments now facing all of us will permit."

In these words Dr. Harvey Agnew, Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Hospital Council, and a past president of the American Hospitals' Association, concluded an able review of "Canadian Hospitals After a Year of War," given at the afternoon session of the British Columbia Hospitals' Association convention yesterday.

COMPREHENSIVE REPORT

The report touched on practically every aspect of hospital administration and inside economy as affected by the war: Costs, the effect on the hospitals of military training of hospital employees, training of nurses and physiotherapists, sales tax, unemployment insurance, care of soldiers and soldiers' dependents, hospital care insurance. It also spoke of the official journal, The Canadian Hospital, the Royal Victoria Hospital, and the division of philanthropy from hospitals to war efforts.

Dr. Agnew was particularly concerned about this last point, which had become of "increasing concern to our more thoughtful hospital supporters," via the fact that "with so much war effort diverted to wartime charities, the problem of maintaining our voluntary institutions has become steadily more difficult, a situation not helped by the rising taxation and the special exemption from income tax extended on behalf of a selected few of the wartime charities."

While Canadian hospital buildings had not been destroyed nor the wards filled with war casualties, Eastern seaboard hospitals had made preparations for raids, and some nurses, doctors, technicians, orderlies and others had been lost through having joined the military services. In the last connection it was noted that the Government would doubtless make every effort to cause the hospitals the least inconvenience.

COSTS UP SLIGHTLY

Costs had gone up, but not to the extent they might have gone had the Government not set up a War-time Prices Board to control inflation. The average price index of consumers' goods had risen about 11 per cent; the cost of living 46 per cent. These, however, were not an index of the hospital situation, as many of the supplies used had gone up tremendously, as much as 100 per cent; others, such as those formerly imported from Germany, were not available at all.

Anticipating a call for nurses, many schools had accepted more probationers. The Canadian Society of Toronto, which now trained most of the physiotherapists, had more than doubled its incoming class this year. The training of laboratory technologists should receive new stimulation. The Canadian Society of Laboratory Technologists was now to be recognized as equivalent to a registry by the Canadian Medical Association, which had recently formulated standards whereby schools in laboratories for the training of technicians might be approved.

Hospitals, said Dr. Agnew, had been fortunate in retaining exemption from sales tax this year. Loss of this exemption would be a terrific blow to "our struggling institutions," and it was to be hoped that the exemption would be maintained.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Dr. Agnew characterized as "another crisis" the passing by Parliament "with record speed" of the Unemployment Insurance measure. Fortunately the Canadian Hospital Council was on the job. While unemployment insurance was desirable, it was the view of thirteen out of fourteen hospital associations in Canada that hospitals should not participate. Dr. Agnew added:

 CONSCRIPTION OF MAN POWER

The Globe and Mail, of Toronto, regards the plan of conscripting manhood, as devised, as "utterly inadequate and ill conceived." It is alluding, of course, to the tenuous military policy of thirty days' training for conscripts, for a war that is the most highly technical ever fought and in which the modern soldier must be a technician. The Toronto newspaper points out that conscription was the answer to the public clamor for a more vigorous prosecution of the war by this country, but that the regulations implementing the mobilization of man power were not drafted until after Parliament had been dismissed, "then the Cabinet sat down, remembering its pledges not to introduce conscription, and drafted a set of regulations which provide no more than an irritating inconvenience to men of serious purpose without improving our fighting strength at all."

In effect what The Globe and Mail points out is that, as is so well understood, men given only thirty days' military training could not defend Canada. They would be immensely handicapped in fighting against professional soldiers. As it is, the thirty days' training is being undertaken without much of the modern equipment of war being available anywhere in the Dominion. Conscription, to the extent that it is being put into force here, is in the nature of a joke in relation to the efficiency of the German war machine.

If, for political expediency, the measure of conscription of man power in this country is to continue to be what it has started out to be, there is a factor that should be applied which might make it of value. That is that the opportunity should be given to conscripts, after their thirty days' training, to enlist in some unit which is destined for war service. There is no doubt that if this chance were provided there would be a response, but at present political short-sightedness has failed to make it available. The outlet for trainees, or draftees, or conscripts, whatever one may call them, to redeem whatever stigma may attach to part-time training that is almost valueless in war of this character should be possible. Even a smattering of the discipline of war effort will inculcate a sense of duty and it should be given the avenues to find its expression. Conscription as conceived is not an integral part of Canada's war effort.

FIRST THINGS FIRST

"If we are not standing for ideals of humanity and justice which our enemies have repudiated what grounds are there for expecting world opinion to rally to our cause?" This is one answer given to the claims made that the R.A.F. in reprisal for what the Luftwaffe is doing, should engage in the systematic bombardment of German civilians. There is the knowledge, too, that the primary object of the present phase of the war is to destroy the enemy's air power, and that, for the time being, every other objective is of secondary importance. A former Royal Air Force officer says: "Retaliation is a temptation to diffuse our energy when it should be concentrated on the single enemy of destroying the means by which the enemy is interfering with our own war production. All our force should be directed towards destroying enemy aircraft, aerodromes and aircraft factories. After that the rest is simple." Yet another opinion expressed is that "Britain must keep her hands clean if she is to experience the blessing of Almighty God, and His deliverance in the hour of danger. To all who think this way the recent official announcement that the R.A.F. intends to continue its policy of confining its attentions to military objects will have brought great relief and thankfulness." From the purely material standpoint, the case against retaliation on the civilian population of Germany is put succinctly by The Times, London: It says:

"The Secretary of State (for Air) quoted an estimate that the fall in German production was as high as 30 per cent, and added that lack of sleep was affecting the morale of the German workers. He might also have quoted the report from the not over friendly source of Vichy that hundreds of vessels destined for the invasion of this country have been destroyed and many of the ports essential for the invasion severely damaged. Here is the result of refusing to be drawn away from bombing the sources and the accumulations of the enemy's military strength. Certain correspondents have urged the diversion of our offensive to reprisal bombing. They are responding to a very natural impulse, but (apart from any other considerations) they are advocating what, at least at the moment, would be a far less effective strategy. It is infinitely better to destroy the places and plant which are the industrial background of the German forces than the houses where the industrial workers live; and it is a better defence for London to destroy the factories at which the raiders are made, to burn the oil on which they fly, and to blast the aerodromes from which they come, than to employ the bombers, which might be doing all these things, in knocking down residential quarters in German cities. We shall remember and we shall not excuse the murderous strategy which seems to give so much pleasure to the German Press; but, unlike the Germans, we shall put first things first in our strategy."

SEARCH FOR FIREARMS

Sir Edward Coke is credited with having defined it as a principle of law that a man's house is his castle; "that the house of everyone is to him as his castle and fortress." In times of peace the belief has persisted that no police officer may enter a home to conduct a search without a warrant. That has been changed by an order-in-council passed at Ottawa under the War Measures Act. This provides that:

"If any person is reasonably suspected of having in his possession or upon his premises, contrary to the provisions of this regulation, any firearm for which a certificate of registration has not been applied for or has been refused or cancelled pursuant to this regulation, or if the Attorney-General of the Province is satisfied that it is in the interest of the public safety or the safety of the State so to do, or so directs, he may be searched for any firearm by any peace officer without warrant, and if any such firearm be found upon any such person or his premises, or in any such place as aforesaid, the same shall be seized and forfeited to the Crown to be disposed of as the Attorney-General of the Province in which such forfeiture takes place may direct."

This incursion on what has been recognized as somewhat of a cardinal principle of the liberty of the subject is necessary in time of war, especially when what are known as traitors are to be found in all countries. It is dictated by the knowledge of what has happened in Norway, Belgium and France where Germany received so much aid from within those countries in her campaign of conquest. This Dominion has many foreigners in its midst, those who are nationals of the Powers with which the British Empire is at war. There must be the means of combating them, and one is to insure that there is no plan in their homes or in any premises they occupy for the assembly of arms and ammunition. In this particular where there is reasonable suspicion, the authorities should make the most rigid search. Up to date the official attitude towards potential enemies within the country has been altogether too complacent.

WOMEN AND WAR WORK

Under National Registration, so far as is known, not a single woman in the country has as yet been invited to give her services in the country's war effort. The registration of women, as well as of men, took place last August. Now in Eastern Canada, there is a threatened shortage of workers in munitions plants. The replacement of a percentage of men by women in these is something that should have taken place long ago as has been the case in Great Britain. There are many of the tasks in munition factories which can be done just as well by women as by men, and it is long since when there should have been a training plan for such replacement. The exigencies of the situation will soon make a call upon women which they have been ready to answer ever since the outbreak of the war, but they have been able to do nothing because they have been given no official encouragement. As long as there is exemption from any militia training for male workers in munition factories and other plants deemed to be essential in war service, private industry is unlikely to replace men with women. It was assumed that National Registration had this purpose in view, but so far nothing is being done, despite the fact that there is a threatened shortage of male labor in munitions plants.

In the course of his review of the war situation on Tuesday, Mr. Winston Churchill said: "I hesitate to say anything of an optimistic nature because our people do not mind being told the worst, but they resent anything in the nature of soothing statements which are not borne out by events, and, after all, war is full of unpleasant surprises." In this country the undeviating policy of politicians and the politically-controlled radio is to pour out a continuous stream of soothing statements which have a tendency to hoodwink the people as to accomplishment and make them inclined to be satisfied with what is being done.

"BE FEARLESS"

We now of all our Allies stand bereft. And yet we have one Ally left. Be fearless. He it is on whom we now rely. Hasten, O God, and make reply.

Trampled lie all agreements in the dust. Therefore, so much the more we must be faithful to the cause of right. For this, O God, with hand and heart we fight.

When hearts seem fearful, gossip not nor moan. Pan to a flame the living spark of hope. Be self-forgetful, soothe the troubled heart, For-country, God, and honor play your part.

—Florence Campbell Willett.

If you will look at a map of the world—and it is a mark of the age that most people possess one—you will see quickly that water is the common denominator in all regions, tying in the continents. From the fifteenth to the eighteenth century man's conquest of the seas was one of the dominant notes of the time. If not the most dominant one. Overlaying the continents and the waters is that universal ocean, the Sea of Skies. That has been the significant development of the twentieth century, and its conquest has remodeled the world. All of which is axiomatic, but still a little unrealized.

It is difficult in times of war, and of universal upheaval affecting the living habits of man, to see clearly some of the major additions to the common store of knowledge. In history, one may trace the advent of gunpowder and of printing, each of which pushed mankind through a new gate, through which there was no going back. In four decades, indeed, in the last century, man has conquered his new-found Sea of Skies. That is another gate through which the whole world of man has passed, never to return. In forty years communication has outstripped the work of four centuries.

While the civil evidences of that conquest are today nearly buried under the panoply of war, they do exist. They mark on the long-term calendar of years an advance such as mankind has seldom, if ever, made before. The conquest of the Sea of Skies incipiently has been, and eventually will be, the most significant physical development of a millennium. Mankind might have made a better use of his gunpowder; but printing and the airplane have been the more significant. The new high ground in the roll of the ages if he wishes to go, as wish some day he will. War has speeded up this process immeasurably, retarding, and sometimes even denying, its civil application at the same time. The world is a different place, and then man will inherit the higher ground unchallenged.

A few years ago oceanic flying by air navigation was still in its pioneering stages, and by many considered impracticable. Today it is routine. The Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans are being flown regularly. A man speaks today in Montreal and tomorrow in London. Hailstones can sniff the Pacific breeze before the clock has moved once around to its starting point. The world is a different place, and then man will inherit the higher ground unchallenged.

In flight at 30,000 feet man is traveling what may well become his world communication line. At that height, even with machines at present developed, the world is a different place. Most continents have shrunk to a single day's flight, and the broadest at the most to two days in time-size. Aircraft the size of a sea-going tug are making eight and eleven-hour journeys non-stop, using star navigation when the sun is out, and celestial navigation when it is not. Beyond his oxygen limit, and has learned to live there at ease. Meanwhile, tonnage is going up.

Aircraft capable of carrying several tons off the ground to altitudes exceeding 20,000 feet are being flown daily in war. In peace time they could move automobiles, trucks, planes, ores, or their equivalent weight in passengers. Air crews have grown from a single man in an open cockpit to a crew of seven or eight in a closed cabin with a promenade deck and full head gear. Lightning, snow, icing, storm-heads, all the sudden shifts and vagaries of the weather, have been met and over-matched. On continents, the ground rats of flying are installed in a permanent fashion. Over oceans, wireless is supplying all the markers needed from point to point.

Even through the mist of war one may see the permanent character of the initial conquest of the Sea of Skies. On your atlas the Sea of Skies extends from the left hand to the right hand margin and from the top to the bottom of the page. At every thousand feet of altitude it is a completely universal air ocean, overlooking the entire world. Regard what printing has achieved in 500 years, and you may well ponder what flying with man in the next four and a half centuries. In less than forty years it has spanned the world.

NEW CHURCH AT GANGES OPENED

Bishop Sexton Officiates at Dedication Service on Sunday Morning

SALT SPRING ISLAND, Oct. 15.—The opening and dedication of the new church of St. George, Ganges, Salt Spring Island, took place at 11 a.m. last Sunday.

Rev. H. E. Sexton, bishop of the diocese, was met at the entrance to the church by Rev. C. H. Popham, vicar of the parish; Capt. V. C. Best, representing the building committee, and others. During the singing of the first hymn and the Twenty-Fourth Psalm, the bishop proceeded to the sanctuary. The prayers were followed by the solemn prayer of dedication.

BISHOP SPEAKS

In the bishop's address, he particularly mentioned the following gifts to the church, including the cross, of local workmanship, and candlesticks, originally from a Belgian church, which had been provided by the Cathedral Women's Auxiliary and the bishop; the oak lectern, by Cecil Abbott; the altar given by Gavin C. Mout, and a sum of money placed at the disposal of the church committee by H. W. Bullock. The result of these and other donations had enabled the church to be opened free of debt. The bell had originally belonged to St. Paul's Church at Ganges, which had been destroyed by fire.

PRaises BUILDERS

With reference to the building itself, the bishop spoke of its beauty and the efficient and painstaking efforts of the contractor. He went on to stress the fact that the building of the church in wartime was definitely part of Salt Spring's war effort and constituted, in part, its answer to Hitler.

The church, which was crowded to capacity, was beautifully decorated by the president, Mrs. R. O'Callaghan, and members of the Altar Guild.

Holiday Week-End Spent at Harrison

The Thanksgiving week-end in the country was the privilege granted the gay and happy thought that journeyed to Harrison Hot Springs from both sides of the border over the long holiday week-end. The Manor House was filled to capacity. Beginning with a ball on Saturday evening, followed by a Canadian Air Force, has been taken over by J. Howard Harman, former Saanich teacher and local athlete. Mr. Harman is located in the Pemberton Building.

Son of A. H. Harman, former real estate dealer of this city, Mr. Harman was principal at Talmie and Royal Oak Schools and later taught at Mount View High School. He trained in law with Locke, Lane & Nicholson, in Vancouver, and then served with Bird & McGill, in the

Coat Grey With Age

It is about time I had a new winter coat," the sporting partner of Bill, the Broad Street barber, remarked when the knight of the shears returned home after a busy day at the shop. "I have had this coat so long that I cannot tell if it is grey squirrel or just gone grey with age." Mrs. Bill added: "Interesting passage from an old Cotton Mather hymn. 'Ye monsters of the bubbling deep, your Maker's praises shout, up from the sands ye codlings peep, and sing your falls about.' Dr. Samuel Johnson once was heard to remark that 'A fishing rod is a stick with a hook at one end and a fool at the other.'"

DIES OF INJURY

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15 (CP).—Harry Law, seventy-five-year-old Vancouver man who was struck by a truck at a residential intersection here, August 24, died in hospital today of his injuries. It was Vancouver's sixteenth traffic death this year.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of October 16, 1890.)

Mission, B.C.—The businessmen of the Townsite of Mission, B.C., announce that they will spend $50,000 in public improvements and buildings in the near future, giving employment to all settlers and furnishing a trade for merchants. The Mission lots are reported to be going off quickly.

To Build Mill—Thomas Wallace, of Chicago, who claims the title of "King of Calumet Mill Builders," is in the city to erect the contemplated works of Brackman & Ker near the Outer Wharf. Mr. Wallace promises that work will be commenced at once, and the greater part of the machinery will be built here by the Albion Works Company. Mr. Wallace was the builder of the celebrated mills at Tilsonburg, Ont.

Y.M.C.A. Notes—Five educational classes have been started at the Y.M.C.A. one each in bookkeeping, shorthand, arithmetic, penmanship and drawing. There is a good attendance. H. E. Burns, of the international committee, will be in the city on Saturday. He will lunch with the board of directors, and in the evening will meet the committee.

Up at Nanaimo, Vancouver Island's one-time flourishing coal centre, there is a shortage of houses. With the establishment of a training camp the civilian population of the city has greatly increased. However, one couple found a way out of the difficulty of finding a home. They rented a trailer and the man who owned it charged $15 a month. A pretty good investment—for the owner.—R.A.G.

Welcome to Indians

An elderly English lady who has happy memories of the years she spent in British Columbia is worried lest the Indians who came over with the second Division may find the hospitality of the British people a "trifle cool" (says the staff correspondent of The Canadian Press). "I understand that a large number of Indians came over with the latest contingent from the Dominion," she wrote, "and I, for one, would like them to know we are proud of them and appreciate what they have done. I should welcome a visit from two or three of them during their leave and shall do everything possible to make their stay an enjoyable one."—B.H.B.-W.

To the Linemen!

Unless we miss our guess Canadian football has won its place in the hearts of local sports followers. Of course, we're judging by the record crowd that witnessed the Thanksgiving Day game at Macdonald Park when the Revels met the local Varsity 23-12, and the enthusiasm displayed. In paying tribute to the Revels, we would like to mention all the gridmen who played such an important part in their team's win, but that is impossible. Instead we will pass a few words to the players who do a large share of the work, but seldom get their names in print—the linemen. These are the boys who set the stage on which backfield men perform. All of them worked hard on Monday, but we noticed particularly the work of a few. There was Big Bill Thompson at end. When Bill went in for a tackle the ball carrier must have thought a torpedo had hit him right around the ankles. Dave Jenkins, captain of the team, played his usual bang-up game at tackle. When he hit them, they stayed hit. Bert Simpson and Roy McKay, playing their first game with the Revels, showed up well. In fact, the three ends performed their chores in such an efficient manner that kick receivers were never able to return the punt more than a few steps. Due to injuries, George Harknett was out of the game. Bus Anderson's snapping from centre was errorless, while Jack McDonald, Jack Stevens, Burgess Berry, Jim Smith and any one may have overlooked, turned in head-up football.—W.F.P.

BIG THRILLS
BUT NO FISHVictoria Trout Fishermen
Have Real Experience
On Nitinat Bar

There are big sporting fish to be caught in the Nitinat River—steelhead and trout principally. But you must try your lures at the right time. George Simpson and H. K. Anstie had a bit of luck fishing the West Coast river early in September, when the fish, just in from the salt water, were hungry. They caught a big string and a picture of it appeared in The Colonist.

The stories that were related about town describing the sport obtained, after returning home, gave some local fishermen a few twinges of envy as well as a few "mouths water." One was Harry T. Barnes, who calls an enticing fly at times. He prevailed upon George Simpson to go along on another trip, believing the parts of the river which produced so many fine fish in September, would prove equally as prolific in October.

No fish were caught either in the river or the lake. The Victorians saw a number of black bears, which, in salmon season, constitute a nuisance along West Coast rivers. The trip was not devoid of adventure, however. They have something to talk about, even if it has nothing to do with the thrill of landing a fighting steelhead. They know something of the way the West

Mayor Endeavors
To Stop Shipment
Of Lead to Japan

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 15 (CP).—Opposition to the reported loading of 4,000 tons of bar lead here for Japan was expressed today by Mayor Fred J. Hume. "I am going to do what I can to stop this," the mayor declared. "Surely there is some part of the British Empire for which the lead could be loaded, not Japan."

Coast can treat a seventy-foot fish-packer in a hurry to get places.

DEVOID OF INTEREST

The trip from Victoria to the Nitinat was devoid of interest. The usual quiet day awoke with breaking across the bar at the mouth of the river, but the skipper of the boat, familiar with the spot, had no difficulty reaching the lake. It was while coming out with a heavy load of salmon from the Kildonan Cannery, Barkley Sound, that the Annie Tuck had the experience which thrilled the trout fishermen. A bad swell was breaking on the bar when the boat ventured out of the river, but as the dog salmon won't keep indefinitely, Skipper Josiah Babcock decided he would have to try and make it, even though he could see some twenty seine boats outside hesitating to attempt the run in with the sea.

The Annie Tuck got over the first or inside line of foam without much trouble and was heading for the outer line of breaking water when, what Captain Babcock calls a "cowardly sea," curled up directly ahead of the boat, and before anything could be done except take it, tons of water piled up over the boat, stopping her headway and dashing solidly against her, wrecking the interior of the pilot-house, smashing her lifeboat, carrying away side lights and bringing down the main-boom, a swinging block from which rapped one of the Indian crewmen on the head, giving him a nasty knock.

OPENED UP DECK

The crashing water opened up the Annie Tuck's deck and flooded into the engine-room. The Diesel engine kept running, but the pump failed to work, and with her load of fish the Annie Tuck had quite a job rounding Cape Beale and getting into the quiet waters of Barkley Sound and delivering her fish at Kildonan. There the Victoria fishermen deserted the fish-packer, preferring to take a launch to Port Alberni and ride in a motor car from there rather than make the trip back to Victoria in the water-soaked craft.

The fish-packer arrived back here all right and was lying alongside Enterprise Wharf over the week-end, where Harry Barnes, marine surveyor, inspected the damage, which amounts to approximately $900.

Knives Used When
Seamen Force Way
Through Pickets

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (AP).—Six men were injured today when a flying wedge of A.P.L. sailors fought their way through a C.I.O. ship scalers' picket line today to the liner President Taft.

Four men were taken to a harbor emergency hospital, two of them suffering from stab wounds.

The picket line, described by the American President Lines and the sailors as a jurisdictional dispute, halted loading of the President Taft as she was preparing to sail with army, navy and marine supplies for American forces in Honolulu, Shanghai and Manila, and to help remove American refugees from the Orient.

Nitinat Lives Up to Its Reputation

On her last job with a "trip" of 9,000 dog salmon from Nitinat Lake to Barkley Sound, the fish-packer Annie Tuck had an eventful experience. A big wave crashed over the outer bar of the Nitinat River and did considerable damage, which will be repaired here. The Annie Tuck's skipper, Captain Josiah Babcock (right), Bobby Joseph and Billy Gibbs, Indian members of the fish-packer's crew, are pictured above. They had a close call, as did two Victoria trout fishermen who were aboard at the time, Harry T. Barnes and George Y. Simpson.

Longshoremen Attend Mass
Meeting—Work on Waterfront Suspended

TACOMA, Oct. 15 (AP).—A "stop work" order that will close the port of Tacoma for five hours was issued today by T. A. Thomson, Pacific Coast secretary of the International Longshoremen's Association, A.F.L., as he completed arrangements for a mass meeting tonight at which union members will discuss what action to take against National Labor Relations Board rulings they oppose.

Thomson said longshore crews would walk off all ships in Tacoma at 6 p.m., cargo lifting will resume at 11 p.m., after the meeting.

Attending the meeting, called after the N.L.R.B. announced it was "in disagreement" on the I.L.A. demand that it be allowed to negotiate working agreements for itself, will be representatives from Tacoma, Port Angeles and Anacortes—the only three Pacific Coast ports the I.L.A. controls and members of the Checkers' Union, A.F.L., from Seattle.

Esquimalt Logical
Location for Site
Of Naval Academy

Before leaving Victoria on Sunday, Hon. Angus Macdonald, Minister of Naval Services, assured Aldermen Burgess, Gadsden and Archie Willis that if the Dominion Government decided to establish a naval academy on the Pacific Coast of Canada, the Victoria area will be given every consideration. The aldermen interviewed the minister on behalf of the City Council.

Mr. Macdonald said he was in favor of a naval college, but he had to convince the Cabinet of its need. If the Cabinet favored it, the minister also felt that the request of Victoria to have it established at Esquimalt was a reasonable one.

CONTINUE WORK ON EVACUATION

National Council of Education Interested in Bringing Children Here

MAJOR F. J. NEY

Efforts which will be continued by the National Council of Education to bring British school children out to Canada independently of governmental assistance, are based on an educational viewpoint, Major F. J. Ney, executive vice-president, said here yesterday.

Major Ney, who is also honorary organizer of the Overseas Education League, arrived in Victoria for a few days to consult with local officials on future plans of the council, and also, to be present at the lecture given last night by Dr. Alfred Noyes, famous English poet.

"Our attitude toward bringing school children to Canada is an educational one—not merely a case of evacuating them because of conditions over there," he stated. "Just as we introduced the scheme of exchange teachers between Canada and Britain in 1913, so we feel the present time presents a magnificent opportunity for the exchange of students on a big scale, and an exchange of educational ideas for a worthwhile experiment in Canadian-Anglo education."

Children in every school. Major Ney, who is returning shortly to England to further these plans, said they will endeavor to bring groups of school children out here, as far as the circumstances permit.

"The present goal of this great experiment is a room of British children in every school in the large cities of Canada," he declared. By this means, British students could make a corporate contribution to the life of Canadian schools and to education in this country generally, he said, in the hope that "by pooling the best of the two systems, we may eventually evolve a system which may serve the very purpose of the war and the things for which we fight—the building of a new world order."

Many invitations. Major Ney said the council had numerous invitations from United States schools for large groups of students from Britain, and stated they were anxious to accept them. "We feel that children are the best possible ambassadors and should do much to further the growing friendship and spirit of co-operation between the English-speaking peoples," he said.

He expressed the hope that through the plans for affiliation of Canadian and English schools "we may eventually devise a scheme almost of adoption between towns on both sides of the Atlantic, and so build a bridge between them of tremendous value when peace comes, while being a great help in the present times of stress."

As an example, he instanced the town of Rye, N.Y., which has invited a group of students from Rye, Essex, for the duration of the war.

Court of Appeal Victoria Sittings

The King, at the prosecution of Jack Moran and John McLaren vs. His Honor Judge C. J. Lennox—The court resumed its sittings yesterday with an appeal from a judgment by Mr. Justice Fisher, dismissing an application brought by the defendants for a writ of mandamus directed to Judge Lennox to bring the defendants before him for purpose of allowing them to elect.

It appears the defendants were before Judge Lennox on September 22 last for purpose of election, but they declined to elect, and asked for a remand. His Honor the following week refused any further right to election and ordered the accused tried by the court having criminal jurisdiction.

The court was concerned as to whether such proceedings could be raised by way of mandamus and reserved its decision.

P. D. Murphy for appellants, and W. S. Owen for the Crown. In the afternoon, the court considered a matter arising under the Infants Act, being an appeal from a judgment of Chief Justice Morrison vacating an order made by the Juvenile Court for the maintenance of a dependent child, Evelyn Sherban, against the municipality of Salmon Arm.

A de B. McPhillips for appellant, and L. Matland, K.C., for respondent.

The hearing continues.

ATLAS The story of "Turnabout," which ends today at the Atlas Theatre, concerns two wealthy moderns, Tim and Sally Willows. Tim is an advertising executive, Sally is a society matron. While they are complaining bitterly about their respective lots in life, they are overheard by the god Ram, who decides impulsively to give them a chance to exchange places and sexes.

CADET How a gay young athlete turns out to be a bigamist with two lovely wives on his hands who are trying to outwit each other for his affections is the breezy basis of Irene Dunne and Cary Grant's latest hilarious offering, "My Favorite Wife," which ends today at the Cadet Theatre.

lashed and five of six lowering chimney stacks were seen to collapse.

At midnight a fresh salvo of bombs "released with great precision" enlarged the blazing area and set off a great explosion that set oil reservoirs in sharp relief.

"The stream of smoke appeared to be at least six miles long," said one flyer. "Then we went down to make our attack, and on the way we could see a block of buildings well alight. The roof had gone and there were giant chimneys standing up in the glare of one of the biggest fires anyone could expect to see. Explosions were occurring in all parts of the target area."

It was believed the damage would affect the output of the refinery for many months to come.

The Air Ministry said the oil plant at Bohlen, south of Leipzig, was bombed for nearly an hour by two squadrons—one of then New Zealanders—and that four large fires visible from twenty miles were started by the first attack.

A PERFECT TARGET

Lighted by leaping fires, the big refinery offered a perfect target for the next wave. One crew, near the end of the raid, saw six more explosions.

Ten minutes after this attack was over the leader of the raiding force began bombing the synthetic benzene and aviation gasoline plant at Magdeburg, seventy-five miles to the northwest.

Heavy explosive and incendiary bombs burst in the factory, one salvo alone causing eighteen separate explosions.

The Gewerkschaft Deutsche Erdöl Refinery at Hanover, which it was announced was heavily damaged in a raid last week, again was attacked, the Air Ministry said, and bombs which straddled the factory in a bombardment of nearly an hour left many fires burning.

Hits were scored on industrial targets at Neuhaldensleben, northwest of Magdeburg, and near Whittemburg, where three large fires were started close to a factory.

ON THE BALTIC

Another raid successfully attacked harbor works at Altdaun, on the Baltic Coast, near Wismar, scoring hits on buildings and a seawall carrying a light railway.

The Air Ministry said bombs were dropped on The Netherlands air-drome at De Koel, near Den Helder naval base, and on the German air-dromes of Sylt, Westermünde, Magdeburg and Nordhausen.

The Berlin attack opened at 2 a.m. through a slight haze that lay over the city and was concentrated as usual upon essential public utilities and communications.

The big Danzig gas works, where fires sprang up, the Templehof railway yards, near the great airport of that name; "military objectives" in the centre of the city, and the Lehrter railway station not far from Berlin's Brandenburg Gate, were bombed by the R.A.F.

Elsewhere in Germany, in Holland and along the coast, the captive French coast British bombs fell through the early morning light. In the port of Le Havre, fires were left raging; the German ports of Hamburg and Emden were similarly attacked, as was Den Helder in Holland.

OVER WIDE AREA

Railway lines, factories, air-dromes—the customary targets of an old campaign of attrition—were bombed over a wide area—specifically at Goettingen, Lingen and Hanover.

One pilot who took part in the Politz raid reported:

"We went over the target and we could see a fire that must have been half a mile wide with clouds of smoke coming up thousands of feet. When we got fairly well up, we took another look and the stream of smoke appeared to be at least six miles long. Nobody could make any mistake about it. The undersides of the clouds were illuminated by a dull, rusty glow as the buildings below caught fire and continued to burn."

"We then went down to make our attack and on the way we could see a block of buildings well alight with flames coming like wicked tongues out of empty frames. The roofs had gone and there were giant chimneys standing up in the glare of one of the biggest fires anyone could expect to see."

"Explosions were occurring in all parts of the target area, and the damage done to the plant must affect the output of the refinery for many months to come."

FELT THE HEAT

Another pilot who arrived later said: "We were about 4,000 feet up and could feel heat coming up as though somebody just under us was using a blow lamp. The fire must have been nearly a mile square, allowing for our height above it. Explosions were breaking out among the flames and we noticed there were only four chimneys where there should have been six. After our attack there were only two chimneys left. Our bombs must have hit very close to their base because the smoke stacks went down like deflated concertinas."

A pilot who was almost the last to leave the scene reported that he saw only one chimney stack standing when he left—

"I think I should have seen the other if it had been there," he said.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER XLIX

Postpone it . . . live down yesterday and leave weariness and sadness and pity for Alan . . .

"Your advice is always sound. I'll call Ann Kirkness in Baltimore. I believe she's getting her vacation around this time."

"Good. She's just the person for you." He chuckled again. "Norman Alexander will keep you know. He seemed pretty sturdy to me. But you've been holding out on me about him . . . When did it begin? Remember there's nothing anyone else than a love story. But at the moment, if you don't mind, dear, your father would like his breakfast, and I'm sure Rose is fussing about the delay."

"Just one thing more," Carol said. Her ring from Alan . . . Going to her dressing table, she picked it up and put it in the palm of his hand and closed his fingers over it. "Alan forgot to mention this. Will you put it in a safe place and when he comes back, send it to him, or better still, take it to him?"

Ann Kirkness, Carol was informed in Baltimore, was in Boston visiting her family. Carol visited Boston and heard Ann's cheerful voice say that she planned to spend only a week of her vacation with her family, a week almost gone, and that for the remainder she was going to an inn in the Pennsylvania mountains where she would join Carol. It was inexpensive, the scenery lovely and she was certain Carol would love the place.

Another call at the inn assured her of a room, and clothes hastily pressed and packed, she was on the train that afternoon idly turning the pages of a magazine her father had put in her hand at the last moment. She stared dreamily at the country side where an occasional frost-tipped leaf had turned to red or gold.

From her room in Tuscany Inn Carol could see the mountain rise out of the morning mist and stand clear and majestic until the evening mist obscured them. Only late vacationists were at the inn, a large white graceful structure, which stood on the edge of a golf course, and Carol found them to be quiet, well-mannered people seeking rest and recreation, and totally unlike the typical summer tourists with a vocal questionnaire for each new guest.

Until Ann came, Carol was a girl alone. She ate alone at a small corner table and walked alone along the mountain paths in the early morning and before dark before returning to her cheerful room to sleep long and soundly while the crisp air sent the chintz curtains billowing. Neither the tennis courts nor the swimming pool nor the library tempted her. When she awoke in the morning, she wanted to be out, wearing a sweater and skirt and sensible shoes, walking against the brisk wind. Autumn had come early to the mountains; the forest was vivid with color and the frost in the morning necessitated the lighting of a fire in the huge stone fireplace on the first floor lounge of the inn.

She was like one convalescing, she thought on the third morning as she walked. Her father had known that; it was as a patient that he had treated her when he sent her away. Last night she had wired him: "Patient much better. Walked five miles today."

Ann, small and dark and vivacious and wearing smart tweeds, burst in upon her one morning while she was still asleep, and, flinging off her hat and gloves, awoke her with a hearty kiss. "Darling, how I rushed to get here! I'm positively dead! Never take a vacation with your family if you expect to get any rest. Parties and dinners and Aunt Sophie's new baby and Uncle Joe's passion for table tennis. They've had no compassion for a nurse's aching feet. What have you been doing? Are there any attractive men in the place? I hope not. My Summer romances always turn out to be Winter bores and problems. How do you like the place? Do you wonder that when I sneak away I sneak away here?"

A Youthful Sailor Frock

By MARIAN MARTIN

GIVE a fashion salute to the sailor dress, pattern 9419. It's a Marian Martin design, which accounts for its charming impudent young style. The lilted princess lines will take a jiffy to stitch up the sew chart. The sleeves may be short and straight or in brief open caps. Make a jaunty matching or contrasting sailor collar—or have a simpler revers version. For a real nautical touch, sew on grey red or blue braid in double rows. Additional interest may be added in lacing of the same braid down the front seams—or perhaps a sailor tie of ribbon. You'll wear this frock throughout busy days to come.

Pattern 9419 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric and 3/4 yard braid. Send 20c in coin for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number. Send your order to The Daily Colonist, Pattern Department, Victoria, B.C.

Poet's Busy Day

In compliment to Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Noyes, who are her guests during their stay in Victoria, Mrs. Curtis Sampson entertained a few friends informally at her home, "Molton Combe," Newport Avenue, following Dr. Noyes' lecture at the Empress Hotel last evening. Supper was served in buffet style from a Venetian lace-covered table centred with a bowl of French marigolds flanked by gold candles in Sheffield holders. Early yesterday morning, Dr. and Mrs. Noyes, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Penderay and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sullivan, of the local committee of the National Council of Education, drove to Fairbridge Farm School, where they had luncheon and visited the chapel and school. Dr. Noyes spoke for a short time to a group of audience of boys and girls, who were particularly delighted when he recited one or two of his poems, including "The Highwayman." On their return to the city, Dr. and Mrs. Noyes spent a short time at the Crystal Garden before having tea at the Empress Hotel.

Baby Christened

A pretty ceremony took place at St. George's Church, Ganges, on Monday, October 14, when at 11 a.m. the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Crofton, Ganges, was christened by Rev. C. H. Popham. The child received the names, Sharon Diana Alina, and the godparents were Mrs. D. Keith Wilson, Vancouver, and Mr. Frank Crofton.

Witty Kitty

Modern Kitty is one of those current debutantes—she came out in 1936 and hasn't been home since.

Victoria. Following the ceremony a reception, attended by about eighteen guests, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Crofton. The rooms were decorated with autumn flowers, and the refreshment table in a color scheme of pale yellow. Vases of pale yellow roses were flanked by tall tapers of the same shade. Among those present were: Mrs. E. Benzie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crofton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crofton, Mr. and Mrs. D. Keith Wilson, Mrs. Graham Shaw, Mrs. Fred Morris, Misses Denise Crofton, Nonie Shaw, Messrs. John Allen, Donald Corbett, Pat Dunn, Eric Springford and Jack C. Smith.

Luncheon Party. Rev. C. H. and Mrs. Popham, of Salt Spring Island, were hosts last Sunday at a luncheon party in honor of Right Rev. H. E. Sexton and Mrs. Sexton at Harbor House, Ganges. The table was prettily arranged for the occasion with autumn flowers. The Bishop gave a short speech of thanks, made special mention of the font which had been designed, made and donated by Mr. J. J. Shaw for St. George's Church and which he had inadvertently omitted to refer to in the dedication service. Mr. Popham replied and Mr. A. R. Price gave a short statement on the cost of the church and how it had been completed with the funds in hand and was free of debt. Among those present were: Capt. and Mrs. V. C. Africa Visit Is Described By Speaker

A fascinating travel and adventure talk by Miss Evelyn M. Penrose, internationally-known water and metal diver, was heard by the twenty-one Scorpianist Club members and friends who attended the October dinner-meeting of the society held at the Washburne Tea-rooms last evening.

Miss Penrose's story covered the six years since she left here in 1934 to attend an international water-diving congress in Paris. Between that time and the present, she had visited Chile and Peru in South America; the West Indies; the Transvaal and Southern Rhodesia, and, on her way back from South Africa recently, Tasmania, New Zealand, China, Japan, and between-way points.

A particularly exciting incident in her narrative was the visit to Kruger National Park in the Transvaal, where she went at the invitation of the Government to divine for water needed for the animals. Several near-introductions to lions and their cubs were recalled as hair-raising adventures, for although the ordinary traveler passes through the park in a motor-car, without being seen by the wild animals, Miss Penrose had to leave her car on occasion in order to use her diving rod.

TROPICAL HEAT. The audience was very interested in her reference to the general conditions in South Africa at the present time. She left Rhodesia on July 22, traveling by cargo boat from Africa to Tasmania. She vividly pictured the discomfort from tropical heat, particularly during the night, when portholes had to be tightly closed in order to prevent betrayal of the ship's whereabouts to enemy raiders.

Miss Marjorie Holmes, the president, introduced the speaker, and Miss Nellie Jones voiced the thanks of the members. Another special guest was Miss Grace Fairley, member of the Vancouver Scorpianist Club. It was announced that the Venture Club, a junior affiliation, would hold a rummage sale on November 2.

Red Cross Tells How To Knit Woolen Mitts

Women are increasing their efforts to provide all types of knitted articles for men in the services and throughout the winter months knitting needles will be clicking with even more energy than they have already done. The British Columbia division of the Canadian Red Cross has released a new pattern for two-way mitts, which are in great demand by men on active duty. Instructions for these articles, which are being rushed to all provincial branches of the Red Cross are given below:

TWO-WAY MITTS
Three-ounce double knitting or 3-ply wheeling yarn.
Four No. 11 needles.
Abbreviations: K—knit; P—purl; st.—stitch or stitches; tog.—together; M—make a stitch.

RIGHT-HAND MITT
Cast on 27 sts. and work 10 rows K1, P1 (ribbing), break wool and put onto an odd needle, but do not cast off.

Cast on 48 sts. (16, 16, 16) and work 4 inches in K2, P2, work plain knitting four rounds.

Fifth round—K1, M1, K1, M1, knit to end of round.
Sixth and seventh rounds—Knit.
Eighth round—K1, M1, K3, M1, knit to end of round. Continue in this way, increasing by 2 sts. every third round, and knitting 2 sts. extra between the increases until you have made ten sts. (58 on needles). Knit 2 rounds.

Next round—K1, take off 11 sts. on holder or thread and cast on 8 sts. on needle with 1 st. on it, knit to end of round. Knit 6 rounds plain.
Next round—K1, transfer this st. to needle just complete. Now work 27 sts. in K1, P1, and finish round plain. Work 9 more rounds, keeping the first 27 sts. in K1, P1, rib.
Next round—Cast off the 27 ribbed sts. and work plain to end of round. XXXXXX.

Next round—Take the piece laid aside and knit in K1, P1, on first needle in place of 27 sts. cast off, and finish round plain. Knit 10 more rounds, keeping 27 sts. in K1, P1, and the remainder plain. Now work 4 rounds plain.

TO SHAPE TOP OF MITT
First needle (with 27 ribbed sts.) K1, K2, tog. through back loops. Knit to within 3 sts. from end of needle, K2, tog. K1.
Second needle—K1, K2, tog. through back loops, knit to end of needle.

Third needle—Knit to within 3 sts. from end of needle, K2, tog. K1. Knit 1 round plain. Repeat these 2 rounds until 18 sts. remain. Craft as for toe of sock.

THUMB
Pick up the 11 sts. (on holder or thread) and pick up 9 more from hand and work 22 rounds plain. Twenty-third round—Knit 2 tog. right around.

Twenty-fourth round—Knit plain. Cut off wool, pull through stitches and finish off. Sew down ends of flap on inside of mitt.

Start as for right-hand mitt by knitting hand flap and leave aside; then rib cuff 4 inches K2, P2. Knit four rounds plain.

Fifth round—Knit to within last 2 sts. on last needle, then M1, K1, M1. Continue as before, increasing at this point until 10 sts. have been added. Knit 2 rounds plain.
Next round—Knit to within last 1 st. on last needle. Put 11 sts. on holder or thread, cast on 8 sts. K1. Knit 6 rounds plain.

Transfer last st. on last row to first needle and including this st. work 28 sts. plain. Work next 27 sts. in K1, P1. Work 9 more rows like this, then cast off the 27 ribbed sts. and continue as first mitt from XXXXXX.

Late Rally Seen
On Wall Street
After Slow Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Steel and utilities led a belated rally in the stock market today after a period of slow movement in the early hours.

Recovery really got under way in the final half-hour and, at the close, early losses running to a point or more for many favorites were converted into gains of as much as 4 1/2 points.

Active broadening on the last-minute comeback and transfers for the full proceedings totaled 347,000 shares, compared with 402,500 yesterday. The Associated Press average of fifty stocks was up 3 1/2 points at 44.2, its best mark in a week.

Brokerage reasons for the quick forward shift in trend varied. Some attributed it partly to a revival of political optimism in Wall Street, which, combined with the generally hopeful business picture, resulted in some short covering and purchases for the long side by those who thought the market was due for at least a temporary upswing.

Industrial and utilities bonds continued their steady upward climb today.

Hardest hit among the foreign obligations were those of Germany, Canada, Australia and Buenos Aires, the 4 3/4's of the Argentine capital slumping 1 1/2 to 48 1/2.

DOW JONES' AVERAGES

Dow Jones' averages closed today as follows:

Thirty industrials, 131.46, up .75.

Twenty rails, 38.64, up .07.

Twenty utilities, 21.92, up .40.

Total sales, 350,000 shares.

Edmonton Comets To Replace Grads In Hoop Circles

Percy Page, Famed Coach of World Champions, Announces Organization of New Club—Will Act as Business Manager—Move Fulfills Promise Made Last June

EDMONTON, Oct. 15 (CP)—Officials of the former Edmonton Commercial Grads basketball organization will seek Dominion and North American senior women's basketball championships under a new club and with a team to be called Edmonton Comets. Percy Page, famed Grads' coach, announced tonight.

The decision to sponsor the new organization and help finance it for at least one year was made at a meeting last night at which the Edmonton Commercial Grads Club was officially dissolved and the books closed, Page said. Dissolution of the club came four months after the Grads' team officially disbanded here June 6.

The new organization will operate along lines similar to those built up by the Grads, who since 1915 won all championships available in girls' basketball. Page said it is expected "most of the material" for the teams will continue to come from the Commercial High School where Page is principal.

Page, who was coach of the Grads and the club's business manager, will be business manager of the new organization. The job of developing the senior "A" Comets has been turned over to Bill Douglas, a graduate of Commercial High, and for many years one of the best-known basketball officials in Canada, Page said.

Clare Hollingsworth, vice-president of the Alberta Amateur Basketball Association, will coach the Comets' senior farm team, the Edmonton Starlets. Page agreed to act as advisory coach until the two new coaches get their units working smoothly.

Practices for the Comets and Starlets will begin immediately. Page said he could not say whether last year's Grads would try for places on the Comets' line-up. B. MacRitchie, one of the Grads, is expected to play. By next Spring it is hoped the newly-formed Comets will be able to take on United States challengers.

FULFILLS PROMISE
Formation of the new organization fulfilled a promise made by Page, a member of Alberta's Legislature, last June when he announced he was willing to assist in forming a team capable of challenging for world honors in the women's hoop game.

"My coaching days are over," he said then. "But I am just foolish enough to lend a hand to some person who offers to carry on."

Grads, before dissolution of the club, voted $100 for purchase of a trophy, to be known as the J. J. Seitz Memorial Trophy, for inter-national senior women's competition; $100 to Edmonton's Spiffie Airplane Fund, and an unannounced sum to the City of Edmonton in appreciation of cordial relations between the two organizations. Other Grads funds have been invested in Dominion war bonds and a surplus was set aside to "the furtherance of girls' basketball" here.

Grads' all-time record was brought to 330 victories and twenty-four defeats last June. They held the Canadian championship every year they tried for it since 1922, the Underwood International Challenge Trophy since it was donated in 1923, and the North American title from 1924 to 1926. In addition, Grads won twenty-four straight at four successive Olympic Games.

Action Depicted on Local Sports Front

The Colonist cameraman made a tour of the Victoria sports front on the Thanksgiving Holiday, and snapped the action pictured above. In the upper picture, Don Garrison, backfield star of the Victoria Revelers, is shown "carrying the mail" in the "Big Three" Canadian Football League match with Varsity Thunderbirds, at Macdonald Park. Locals won the fixture, 23-12, for their second straight victory. In the lower picture, midget racing automobiles are lined up awaiting the starter's flag for the heat races, one of the many events on the speed programme at the Langford track.

RUGBY LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Six Clubs Entered in Inter-Services Loop—First Games Oct. 26

Well-known figures in local Rugby circles, Lieutenants Campbell, Forbes and Bert Butler, were yesterday named president and vice-president, respectively, of the Inter-Services Rugby League. Forbes is a former McKenna Cup star, and last year took over the coaching duties from Wally Brynjolfsson.

Butler, instrumental in organizing the Fifth Brigade senior fifteen some years ago, later became associated with the Bays as manager and coach, and also filled the important position as pilot of Victoria's McKenna Cup squad.

Four fifteens, R.C.N., R.C.A., 2nd Battalion, The Canadian Scottish Regiment, and the R.C.A.F. have filed entries in the senior division, while in the second section applications have been received from A.S.C. Signals and R.C.N.

First division games were set as follows:
October 26—R.C.N. vs. R.C.A.F. Admirals Road; R.C.A. vs. 2nd Battalion C.S.R. Work Point Barracks.
November 2—2nd Battalion C.S.R. vs. R.C.A.F. Work Point Barracks; R.C.N. vs. R.C.A. Admirals Road.

A.S.C. Signals have been drawn against R.C.N. for a second division game, but the date and playing field have not been announced.

Other members of the executive are Sub-Lieut. J. N. Fraser, secretary-treasurer, and Sergeant Pauls, R.C.A.F. member.

LAWN BOWLING

The Victoria Lawn Bowling Club closed a successful season with a rinks competition on the Beacon Hill greens on Thanksgiving Day. Fifty players took part. First prize was won by A. Walker's rink, with a 32 to 9 victory over John Goldie's team.

Second honors went to Shearling's rink with a 23 to 13 decision over T. Renfrew, and third prize was won by H. A. Beckwith's rink with a 21 to 11 verdict over P. Sellers.

Following are the scores and players:
Mrs. P. Seller 32
Mrs. J. York 9
Mrs. Lewis 21
Mrs. Goldie 13
Mrs. Duff 32
Mrs. Shearling 21
Mrs. Shearling 21
Mrs. Shearling 21
Mrs. Shearling 21

He marched up and down the line, grimly eyeing each man's bundle, and then he singled out Private McTavish.

"Tooth brush?" he roared.
"Yes, sir."
"Razor?"
"Yes, sir."
"Hold-all?"
"Yes, sir."
"Hm! You're all right apparently," growled the officer. Then he barked: "Housewife!"
"Oh, very well, thank you," returned the recruit amiably. "How's yours?"

BOUCHER IS NAMED MANAGER-COACH OF NEW YORK RANGERS

Lester Patrick, Boss of Stanley Cup Winners, Makes Important Announcement Regarding Club Management—Heavy Office Duties Cause for Action

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15 (CP)—Lester Patrick, veteran manager-coach of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League, announced here tonight he was turning the Rangers' coaching duties over to Frank Boucher, assistant coach of the team and former ace centre man.

Patrick, who has guided Rangers since they were first organized in 1926, said he was giving up the post in order to devote full time to heavy office duties involved in his three-team string. Rangers operate Philadelphia Ramblers in the American Hockey League, and New York Rangers in the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League as farm clubs.

WON BYNG TROPHY
For his sportsmanship in National League play, Boucher seven times was awarded the Lady Byng Trophy and finally was given the original trophy for his permanent possession by the donor.

Two years ago he left active play and became coach of New York Rangers. He guided the team to the U.S.A. League championship and a victory over Detroit Hoosiers for the United States national title.

Last season Patrick brought Boucher back to the Rangers as assistant coach. According to Patrick, "he deserves 98 per cent of the credit" for the Rangers' victory in the Stanley Cup series last Spring.

Boucher had little to say regarding his appointment, except that he was "very happy."

SENIOR CAGE SQUADS PLAY HERE TONIGHT

West Road Hoopmen to Make Debut Against Dominoes

West Road cagemen will make their season's debut this evening at the Sports Centre, when they step on the floor to oppose the Victoria Dominoes, former Canadian champions, in a senior "A" cage fixture that will headline a triple card.

The suburbanites, according to meagre reports reaching the city basketball front, have combined two clubs—West Road and Champion & White, senior "B" teams of last year, for the jump into the top circuit.

Dominoes opened their 1940-41 campaign with an impressive 30-15 victory over the Arrows, Saturday evening, and will be favored to mark up their second straight triumph this evening. However, with plenty of reserve strength, the West Road aggregation will be in their fighting every inch of the way.

The evening's curtain raiser will bring together Victoria and Hornby's Hornets, senior "C" men's aggregations, at 7 o'clock, while at 8 o'clock Aces and Commercial, senior "B" men's squads, are listed for action. The Dominoes-West Road battle will be the concluding game on the triple programme.

LAST NIGHT'S GAMES
Minor cage quintettes ushered in their season last night at the Victoria High School gymnasium, where a handful of spectators watched six clubs in action.

Playing in the opener, Y.M.C.A. junior boys defeated K.V.s, 22-18, while Chinese Students turned back Hoyle Brown, 42-30, in an intermediate "B" boys' battle. In the final fixture on the evening's card the Capitals, after establishing a substantial early lead, defeated the Alcos, 30-16.

Excellent Entry for Monster School Gala Here Friday Evening

Approximately 200 Students From Greater Victoria Educational Institutions Will Compete At the Crystal Garden

Approximately two hundred care-free, happy students from the many educational institutions in Greater Victoria will vie for honors in the sixteenth annual gala to be presented Friday evening in the Crystal Garden pool. Eighteen events are listed on the programme, with the first swimmers scheduled to take to the water at 8 o'clock.

Sponsored since its inauguration by the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, the event is one of the most popular of the many galas staged at the local pool. Interscholar rivalry is at its highest in many seasons, with Sir James Douglas, winners of the Sir Edward Beatty Aggregate Trophy reported to have a strong contingent ready for action.

Topping the entry list, each with twenty-five competitors, are Oak Bay High School and Monterey Elementary School. Central Junior High and Sir James Douglas are next in line with twenty-one entries each. Other schools entered include Victoria and Mount View High Schools, Victoria West, Cloverdale, Esquimalt, North Ward, South Park, Willows, Margaret Jenkins, Quadra, Tillamook, Royal Oak, McKenna Avenue and Model (Saatchi).

Feature events on the card will be the 200-yard relay races for the Britannia Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Pendray Trophies. The Legion Cup is for boys' teams from public schools Grades Seven and Eight, and the Pendray Cup is for girls' relay squads from similar grades. Sir James Douglas and Cloverdale won the trophies last year.

Thursday evening at St. Louis College a meeting of the Midget League will be held. All clubs are asked to have representatives present as final plans for the season will be drawn up.

GENEROUS AID TO SUFFERERS

Moore Order Receives $1,500 City Lot and Flowers for Lord Mayor's Fund

Some notable additions to the Lord Mayor's Fund have come to hand in the campaign being carried out by the Order of the Moose here. Outstanding among these is the giving of a property in Pittsburg, Penn. by the owner, who resides here, but who is anxious to aid the sufferers from the war in the Old Land. This property is valued at $1,500.

The owner lends every assistance to the committee in disposing of the property, for which a clear title will be given, with the total proceeds going to the fund. The donor is a native of England, but has been living in the United States for a time until moving here.

Another generous donation is from Mrs. B. W. Paul, Poul Bay Road, who is presenting one hundred pots of magnificent chrysanthemums in full bloom.

DEPARTMENT HAS SURPLUS

Esquimalt Public Works Committee Expects Balance on Year's Work

The public works department expected to conclude the current year with a surplus between $1,000 and $1,500, Councilor Albert Heald, chairman, reported to the Esquimalt Council last night.

Total expenditures, less certain credits, for the first nine months were $124,498.85. As the 1940 appropriation was $20,251.09 this left a balance of $7,752.24 for the remaining three months of the year. Road maintenance amounted to $4,934.41 up until September 30, while upkeep of sidewalks was $1,997.68. Sewer maintenance came to $1,596.06.

Purchase of a Model "D" 35 International truck, as recommended by a special committee, from Thos. Pimley, Ltd., was authorized. The truck, including hoist, will be $2,472.65, and will be paid out of public works funds. Even this added expenditure would not interfere with the possible surplus, Councilor Heald said.

TAX COLLECTIONS GOOD

General taxes collected up until September 30 amounted to $63,718.11 as compared with the estimated collection for the full year of $63,032.59, the report of the auditors showed.

Collection of taxes in arrears and delinquent in the first nine months were above the estimated collection for the full twelve months. Arrears collected totaled $5,969.43 as compared with the estimated collection, $5,500. Delinquent taxes collected amounted to $6,266.49, and the estimated collection up to December 31 was $5,500.

Sewer rates and rentals came to $7,642.03, another increase over the twelve-month estimate of $7,661.82. Licenses, fines and fees collected up to September 30 amounted to $5,038.97. The estimated collection was placed at $2,500.

NO POOL ROOM

Reasoning that the establishment of a pool room in the old Bank of Montreal building at the corner of Esquimalt Road and Constance Avenue was not in the best interests of the residents of the district, the council refused the application of Ted Johnson, Breffny House, for a license to operate one.

It was pointed out that once such a license was granted, it could not be revoked, and the premises might tend to occasion extra work for the under-staffed police force.

Bonfires for the children of the municipality will be held on Halloween along the same lines as those last year, the council decided, in answer to a letter from W. H. Warren, city parks superintendent, pointing out the advantages of the attractions. Entertainment, etc., will be provided for the youngsters.

School children of the municipality will be given preference over others to use the municipal playing field, the council ruled, in granting permission to the elementary and high schools to use Bullen Park. The elementary school will have the grounds on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and the High School students on Monday and Wednesday.

The annual Remembrance Day service of the Esquimalt Community Club will be held at the Cenotaph in the Memorial Park on November 11. Reeve Alex Lockie consented to place a wreath, as in former years.

The Ajax, several miles ahead of the flagship, opened fire immediately.

Could I enjoy my food, my work or my tobacco any better with a tight white collar around my neck? No, I know what I like! I like being my own boss, in the open air, with the changes that farming brings in every season. But I like the same tobacco year in and year out, the tobacco that I can smoke and enjoy all day and every day. I've tried 'em all and you can take it from me that, for all 'round smoking pleasure, there is no other tobacco just like Old Chum.

Available in packages, pouches and 16 lb. tins.

she was still flaming, sending up a big smudge of black smoke. Shortly after 9 a.m. a sheet of flame spouted skyward. A torpedo from the York had touched off the Italian vessel's magazine.

Then she went down, a rainbow band of pink, light green and purple framing her. She disappeared she sent up puffs of steam.

The rainbow disappeared almost as quickly as the Artigliere, and a long spiral of white smoke marked the spot where the vessel had been. The York, remembering the experience of other British ships which were bombed while trying to rescue Italian seamen from the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney last July, decided to avoid a repetition of that experience.

ASSISTS SURVIVORS
So the York dropped rafts into the water, supplementing those already carrying the Artigliere's seamen, and Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander in chief of the Mediterranean Fleet, sent a radio signal in Italian giving the position of the survivors. A few of those left adrift from the destroyers sunk by the Ajax were picked up.

British aircraft some time later sighted three Italian cruisers and several destroyers southeast of Sicily, apparently dispatched in the hope of covering the Artigliere. The British flagship sent cruisers to engage them, but the Italian vessels turned about quickly.

The Italians attempted to make the British pay for their victory by showering bombs on the fleet, but the Fascist planes missed, all missiles falling harmlessly into the sea.

Pom-poms and four-inch anti-aircraft guns beat off six heavy air attacks within a few hours.

PLANES ALSO FAIL
British fighter planes from aircraft carriers engaged the attackers. Their machine-guns shot down one Italian plane shadowing the fleet, and two Italian bombers, wreathed in flames, plummeted into the sea.

Still another bomber was downed by anti-aircraft guns, and a fifth was seen fluttering toward land with motor dead and part of its fuselage shot away.

All the British fighters returned safely to their ships.

The Italians, apparently sticking to a policy of avoiding contact of their main units with the British fleet, sent out a large force of submarines, causing attack warnings to be sounded almost continuously aboard this flagship and other units of the British fleet during the last two days of the week-long sweep through the Mediterranean.

ARRIVES AT GIBRALTAR
LA LINEA, Spain, Oct. 15 (CP)—A British warship damaged during a recent naval engagement near Malta, with a nap showing in her side above the waterline, has arrived at the British base at Gibraltar, it was reported tonight.

Early tonight, five bodies had been removed from the ship and fifteen to twenty wounded were being cared for in Gibraltar hospitals, according to information received here.

(The vessel might have been the cruiser Ajax which fought eight Italian war vessels in the Mediterranean, causing the sinking of three. The Admiralty in London announced that the Ajax was hit above the waterline and suffered a few casualties.)

SAYS HIGHWAY BOARD FUTILE

Premier Pattullo Defends Administration's Policy On Roads

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15.—"Whatever may happen in the future, it would be folly to appoint a highway commission under present conditions," Premier Pattullo declared in an address before the Vancouver Rotary Club at noon today. The highway commission plank had been in the Liberal party platform in 1933, but had subsequently been taken out, the Premier said, as impractical at this time.

Explaining the road policy of the Province, the Premier said a definite plan of east and west highways, with north and south laterals, was being consistently followed as funds became available for the purpose. Highway staffs of the Provincial Department of Public Works were experienced, and more closely in touch with actual needs than any commission would likely become for some time.

The Province regarded permanent road construction as a capital outlay, the chief difficulty being the financing of new work in times when there were many and heavy calls on the Province in respect of other services. Two hundred miles of the new Big Bend route had been turned over by the Dominion to the Province unimproved, and its paving would cost $1,000,000. If all the money were put there, as some contented there would be nothing left to further the needs of all other areas of the province, the Premier declared.

CHANGING TIMES

Premier Pattullo closed with a brief reference to the war, in which he said, in part:

"In our own Dominion we are fortunate. In all probability we shall be comparatively unscathed. While we maintain inviolate individual freedom and liberty to exercise individual initiative, we must also learn to co-operate in measures which make for collective welfare. We shall get to the point where there is no poverty or distress, but all out of the whole shall have sufficient for sustenance in reasonable degree. We shall not have so many rich, nor shall we have so many poor. We shall have a happier and more prosperous nation, with material abundance and cultural opportunity. Truly shall all be for the state and the state for all."

that appeared desirable goes without saying," the Premier said, "but we did move as rapidly as we could. I think now that I have effectively answered the suggestion that there has been no road policy."

A DROPPED PLANK
In regard to the appointment of a highway commission, Mr. Pattullo said that prior to 1933 a highway commission plank was contained in the Liberal platform—a plank of which he was always dubious—but
